DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over GB 1324717.

The instant claims are drawn to a process for making an alcohol and/or ketone by contacting an alkene with an oxide catalyst comprising oxides of molybdenum and/or tin, wherein molecular oxygen is not fed to the reactor, and the catalyst is circulated between a fluid bed reactor and a regenerator, and wherein a stripper is provided on the way from the reactor to said generator.

GB 1324717 teaches a process wherein an alkene, i.e., propene or n-butene, is contacted with a supported catalyst comprising molybdenum oxide and tin oxide in the presence of steam, wherein the gas mixture comprises substantially no oxygen to produce the corresponding alkanone. In one embodiment, the catalyst circulates between the reaction zone and a regeneration zone in a moving bed, i.e., in a fluidized state (page 1, line 40 to page 2, line 40). The catalyst is comprised of from 15 to 33% tin oxide and from 13 to 15% molybdenum oxide (p 2, lines 101 to 111).

The major difference between the reference and the instant claims is that the reference does not expressly teach a stripper being provided on the way from the reactor to the regenerator. However, the reference does teach that the catalyst circulates between the reaction zone and a regeneration zone, and that steam and/or inert gas can be passed over the catalyst before and/or after contacting with an olefin-free mixture. This contacting of the catalyst with steam or inert gas is essentially a stripping step, and would be recognized by a person of ordinary skill in the art as such. It therefore would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the present invention was made, to conduct this "stripping" step between the reactor and regenerator, since the presence of oxygen in the reactor may result in over oxidation of the alkene reactant and a reduced selectivity to the desired alkanone product.
